Local Adaptive Athlete Claims Gold

Bountiful native, Nicole Roundy, won the gold medal at the Extremity Games in Waterford, Michigan last week. Roundy wiped out the competition in the Women's Wakeboarding category on July 26th.

Nicole is a childhood cancer survivor and an active above-the-knee amputee. After high school she fought for the opportunity to participate in board sports and now fights to push the bar farther. An avid snowboarder, she jumped into wakeboarding last summer with the National Ability Center in Park City, Utah.

Extremity Games is an extreme sporting competition held annually for individuals living with limb loss or limb indifference and is the only extreme competition designed for these athletes. Categories include wakeboarding, BMX biking, kayaking, motocross, mountain biking, rock climbing, and skateboarding.

Nicole is continually working to improve her riding and aims for a higher and more challenging competitive level. Last winter she foreran for the World Superpipe Competition, and this coming season she will train with the Park City Snowboard Team and the National Ability Center as part of the first Adaptive Snowboard Team formed in the United States.
